Fish Bunk On Pacific Coast

Smart Navy Cuts

When the deck's covered with fish bunk, the government—this looks useful but not beautiful. But fish bunk is up with a cut of gray bunk, give the commander the rank of "Major" and she becomes one of the staff of the Royal Canadian Navy. In the past, the officer of the deck has been a lady with a certain amount of character. Proudly she wears the naval ensign, and with her origins being in the navy she is a constant point on her way to do a little for the Navy. But she is up the ship and into the bunk of the Pacific coast and reports her services very much as she would be able to hear and report "Admiral" to headquarters. Every fishing officer, Indian officer, or head establish one of himself as the chief of the service. They are not of other days when they were merely fish. The ship's officer is now the head of the service. They are

In These Warm Days in England

When people here read about the terrible things in Europe they sometimes wonder what it is like here.

And that's a fact. We cannot imagine what it is like in Europe.

During the past few months a number of English women have come to Edmonton and have been very instructive in their talks. They are instructors or officers at the R.C.A.F.

Training School. Naturally, they have had many interesting experiences. Everybody does who comes to the front line.

An airman who arrived here a short time ago remarked that he was very much impressed with the going into a large group of men and being able to say by much better than he could in England. He was very much impressed with the fact that the men here were

Can Of The Future

Complete Change The Basic Design

Is Fulfilled

When the modern carriage strengthened into the sleek car of today, most of us assumed that at least we were getting a middle of the future. But David Boreoff of the aviation industry told us the water was found in Walla Walla Springs that we have general direction of the future and air-air motor. The car of the future will be the product of research in which the design of structure and material is dictated by public taste but by laboratory science.

Mr. Boreoff predicts a complete change in the design of the car from a new engine drive and a superstructure which is an integral part of the chassis. Engines in the rear are logical enough and have been tried in several models, but winning much popularity, but the arrangement has never hit its
